Patrick Murphy Graduates from Leadership Clayton

FIFTH DANNA MCKITRICK ATTORNEY INVOLVED IN LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

St. Louis, MO – July 23, 2007 – Danna McKittrick attorney, Patrick Murphy is one of 17 people comprising Clayton Chamber of Commerce Leadership Clayton 2007 graduating class. He is the fifth attorney of the firm to participate in the exclusive program. Participants of Leadership Clayton are selected based on both their leadership potential and community involvement.

Each Leadership Clayton class spends nine months learning about themselves, expanding their professional and social network, refining leadership skills, and examining issues that affect Clayton. Class members devote their time to one major project aimed at strengthening and enhancing the quality of life in the area. The Leadership Class of 2007 selected 'Clayton Speaker Series' as their class project.

"Leadership Clayton's strength comes from being multifaceted," says Murphy. "The combination of leadership development, setting personal goals, and teamwork is powerful and sets us apart. Looking ahead, we need to develop the next generation of leaders for our community and keep them in Clayton to competitively promote economic development."

As both an attorney and CPA, Murphy's practice includes sophisticated estate planning as well as corporate transactions and advice in mergers & acquisitions, buy/sell agreements, corporate structuring, and real estate transactions for small to medium-sized businesses. Murphy obtained his J.D. from Saint Louis University School of Law and his B.S.B.A., in Accounting, from Creighton University.

About Leadership Clayton:

Established in 1993 by the Clayton Chamber of Commerce, Leadership Clayton explores various qualities of leadership and helps participants identify and enhance their own leadership styles. It facilitates an environment where participants are motivated to develop an increased sense of community and are encouraged to assume leadership roles in community affairs.
